Excerpt from The Genius and Character of Burns Burns is by far the greatest poet that ever sprung from the bosom of the people and lived and died in an humble condition Indeed no country in the world but Scotland could have produced such a man and he will be for ever regarded as these glorious representative of the genius of his country He was born a poet if ever man was and to his native genius alone is owing the perpetuity of his fame For he manifestly had never very deeply studied poetry as an art nor reasoned much about its principles nor looked abroad with the wide ken of intellect for objects and subjects on which to pour out his inspiration The condition of the peasantry of Scotland the happiest perhaps that providence ever allowed to the children of labor was not surveyed and speculated on by him as the field of poetry but as the field of his own existence and he chronicled the events that passed there not merely as food for his imagination as a poet but as food for his heart as a man Hence when inspired to compose poetry poetry came gushing up from the well of his human affections and he had nothing more to do than to pour it like streams irrigating a meadow in many a cheerful tide over the drooping flowers and fading verdure of life About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
